'The Dragon' roars back into pro wrestling

The Dragon is roaring again. After spending almost eight years away from mainstream wrestling promotions, Ricky "The Dragon" Steamboat has resurfaced as a babyface commissioner for the National Wrestling Alliance/Total Non-stop Action promotion.

One of the most respected performers in grappling history, Steamboat has given NWA/TNA a boost of credibility as the upstart group attempts to provide competition to World Wrestling Entertainment.

"I guess after so many years, I was getting the stage bug like a lot of other guys," said Steamboat, who is now a fixture on NWA/TNA's weekly Wednesday night pay-per-view shows. "Being back in front of the crowd, it's always a good feeling to get that adrenaline rush once again. At the same time, I wanted to give back to the fans in the form of entertainment in any way I can."

Steamboat's in-ring career abruptly ended in 1994 after a match against Steve Austin in World Championship Wrestling. Landing on his tailbone after being tossed from the top rope, Steamboat suffered spinal compression in two discs and was told by three doctors that he should retire.

"It was difficult to do," said the 49-year-old Steamboat, who began wrestling in 1976. "I was 50-50 over it. Maybe it was a blessing and it was time for Rick Steamboat to get out of the business. But the other 50 percent in me wanted to keep wrestling for another two or three more years."

Steamboat, whose real name Richard Blood, shifted his concentration solely toward the health club he owned near his home outside Charlotte, N.C. But to this day, even casual wrestling fans remember Steamboat's legendary matches against Randy Savage, Jake Roberts and Ric Flair.

Steamboat's victory over Savage at Wrestlemania III in 1987 is still considered one of the greatest matches in WWE history and was arguably just as memorable as the show's main event featuring Hulk Hogan's win over Andre the Giant.

We had the underlying understanding that Hogan and Andre were the draws of the show," Steamboat said. "We just had the thought that we could go out and steal the show. It sort of ended up that way."

Steamboat and Flair then renewed their long-time feud in WCW in 1989. Every match was a wrestling clinic, especially a two-out-of-three falls bout at Clash of Champions VI in New Orleans. The two wrestled for just over 55 minutes, ending with Steamboat scoring a controversial victory because the referee counted a pinfall while Flair's foot was on the ropes.

Asked whether he prefers the match with Savage or Flair, Steamboat chose the latter because almost the entire bout was called in the ring based on crowd response rather than laid out step-by-step like the Wrestlemania III classic.

"It's a hard call," Steamboat said. "Randy and I put together our match weeks before it actually happened. It was a 16-minute match with about 22 false finishes, which made the match so good."

"With Flair, we probably spent 10 minutes going over what we were going to do. The guys in the locker room were saying, 'Is that all you guys are going to talk about? Just the falls?' We were just a couple of guys who had been around and could call it in the ring as we see it. You just have an instinct and a gut feeling about your ring psychology and which way the match is going to flow. Work this hold, and if it doesn't work, go on to something else."

Steamboat is trying to impart that type of knowledge to the impressive roster of lightweight performers in NWA/TNA. Rather than just stringing together a series of high-risk maneuvers with rhyme or reason, Steamboat hopes the younger performers learn how to structure their matches more conservatively.

"All those (NWA/TNA) guys are good. They just need a little push and a little guidance," he said.

There are few wrestlers left equipped to give it to them Steamboat.

A fair booth promotes breastfeeding

Women, Infants and Program of Cameron, Elk, Jefferson and counties had a table at Clearfield County Fair e healthy mothers and babies. The theme for breastfeeding Week Aug. 12 was "Breastfeeding: Mothers and Healthy growth and development of baby's brain, immune system and general physiology and is a vital factor in preventing common illnesses, especially diarrhea and infections of the respiratory tract, ear and urinary tract.

Breastfeeding also has definite benefits for mothers. Exclusive breastfeeding shortly after birth lowers the mother's risk for excess post-partum bleeding and anemia. Long-term breastfeeding can also protect a mother from breast and ovarian cancers and brittle bones.

The local five-county WIC program is an agency of the North Central Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission. More information on WIC is available by calling 1-800-WIC-WINS.

Benefit — A benefit dance and fund-raiser was held at the Elberton Hotel in Irwona recently for the Elberton Abbott Fund. Brandon died in a vehicle accident May. The dance at Elberton Park raised $775.77 to help the family pay for funeral costs. Four bands donated their time; proceeds came from a Chinese auction and a dunking booth.

Treating psoriasis is a matter of trial and error

Allen Douma, M.D., Tribune Media Services
R. DR. DOUMA: I have been treating psoriasis for 18 years. I have thick silvery scales associated with itching, which forces me to appreciate any advice that offers relief from this suffering.
M.R. Psoriasis is a common inflammatory skin disease. Lesions show up as silvery scales on top of bright red, sharply defined plaques. Lesions are usually found on the elbows and scalp, but they can be seen on ankles and there will be no symptoms of itching and scaling are reported symptoms of the nails and a type of injury or irritation to the skin is present. assumed that someone with psoriasis is more susceptible to other diseases. However, because psoriasis is a chronic disease, it is considered to be a higher risk of getting other diseases. members will require trial and error. For limited skin involvement, the first step is to try high-potency steroid ointments. These are not available over the counter, so doctor's visits are in order. There are a number of steroid preparations you can choose from and recently one that is delivered as a foam has worked well.

Another approach is to use a combination of lower potency steroid creams and tars applied to the skin.

Also, about one-third of people with psoriasis will get a good response from simply covering the area with a dressing that prevents contact with the air for about a week.

A new medication that has recently been approved has shown very good results in people with mild to moderate psoriasis. It is called calcipotriol and is a chemical relative of vitamin D. A recent study combines the use of the drug with a steroid and found the results were better than either drug separately. Methotrexate has been shown to be effective for more severe forms of psoriasis.

Because of potential liver and kidney damage, methotrexate should be used only under strict supervision of a doctor. Cyclosporine is effective, but also has major side effects.

Ultraviolet radiation, both alone and in combination with drugs such as psoralen, help some people.

Even simple sunbathing is helpful.

Laser surgery with a special type of laser can provide good results, especially for well defined and smaller lesions.

Occasionally, psoriasis is confused with seborrheic dermatitis, which is also an inflammatory skin disease. In its mildest form, it would simply be viewed as dandruff, but more severe cases can have large, red, scaling patches and even hair loss.

Seborrhea is usually differentiated from psoriasis in that psoriasis lesions are well defined and crusty, and seborrheic dermatitis has a generalized redness without thick scaling.

As with psoriasis, the cause is unknown. Because one effective treatment is an anti-fungal agent, for some people the cause may be the body's reaction to yeast (fungus) material present in the scalp.

Seborrheic dermatitis is hard to get rid of completely, but episodes are treatable. A variety of shampoos and lotions are available, many of which don't require a prescription.

As with psoriasis, different products work better for different people, so experimentation is key.

Shampoos containing tar, zinc pyrithione or selenium can be used daily. Shampoos containing the anti-fungal drug ketoconazole are used twice weekly. Selenium sulfide is used once a week for the toughest cases. Cortisone creams or lotions are also available to be used as necessary.

Several Curwensville Elementary students recently experienced the excitement of seeing their words in print with the help of Jeanne Dreibeis, Title 1 Reading Instructor. The children's words were included in the book, "Eat Anything That Moves (Good, Bad and Very Silly Advice From Kids)." The elementary students received autographed copies of the book. Seated, from left, are Gentri Billotte, Megan R. Joslyn Smeal and Lacey Shaffer. Standing, from left, are teacher Dianne Sutusky, Mrs. Dreibeis and teachers Jan Shanafelt and Tom Wassil.

On behalf of the Moshannon Valley Black Knights marching band, thanks to all those who helped to make the summer's marching band program a success. The band has come a long way since practice started in June, and I am very proud of them.

than 6,000 entries were submitted and 150 were chosen for the book. The Curwensville Elementary students had their submissions selected.

Megan Richards, a student in Mrs. Dreibeis's class, said, "I don't put my baby sister in the yard just because she's a kid."

Gentri Billotte, a student in Diane Sutusky's class, said, "A brother is a very close friend. Spend the most time with him. You may not see him one day, like I did."

Mr. Bender called Gentri to her about her brother, Lacey Shaffer, and Jo Smeal, students in Tom Wassil's class, also had their quotes selected.

Lacey warned people, "N. pick your nose when your nose is in the brakes." Joslyn said, "If you can't find your shoe, your shoe will find you."

The students received a signed copy of the book.

Area teen participates in weeklong ECO camp

HARRISBURG — A student from Clearfield Area High School recently participated in the first-ever Environmental Careers Outdoors (ECO) Camp developed by the state Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR). Chris Luzier of Clearfield was one of 21 students from 12 counties completing the weeklong environmental learning camp designed to foster interest in outdoor careers.

ECO Camp provided the selected students in grades 9-12 a hands-on, team building experience in an outdoor setting from June 16-22 at Kings Gap Environmental Education Training Center near Carlisle, Cumberland County.

"This first-ever program developed by DCNR was an excellent teaching and learning tool for the students," said DCNR Executive Deputy Secretary John Plonski. "They received information about conservation, recreation and careers in natural resources in a setting rarely experienced by students."

Other activities included: geology expeditions; outdoor recreation; search and rescue techniques; and identification of wildlife, tree species and organisms in nearby state parks and forests. June 21 was an "outdoor adventure day," with canoeing and other activities at Gifford Pinchot State Park, York County, and evening tent camping at Pine Grove Furnace.

"Not only did the students learn about their environmental surroundings, they now have great opportunities to further their careers and education as a result of this program," said Mr. Plonski.

Participation could lead to continued involvement with agency staff and programs, internships, mentoring programs, job shadowing and positions as future camp leaders.

Directed by an ECO "theme day leader," each day of the camp represented a different environmental theme — water, forestry, geology, wildlife and outdoor recreation.

Students traveled to Pine Grove Furnace State Park, Cumberland County, on June 17, for water-oriented activities, including fishing, fish stocking and sampling and placement of turtle habitat structures.

The students completed problem-solving and decision-making exercises, and developed an appreciation for the broad diversity of members within the group. The 21 students — 11 females and 10 males — represented Allegheny, Berks, Cambria, Centre, Clearfield, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Franklin, Montgomery, Philadelphia and Somerset counties.

James K. Davis, manager of Blue Knob State Park, Bedford County, coordinated the ECO Camp program. Co-directors were Linda Ingram, environmental education supervisor, Nolde Forest Environmental Education Center, Berks County, and Mike Jones, environmental education specialist, Bureau of State Parks' Region 4, Bucks County.

To enter the program, the students had to have maintained a C average or better; submitted a letter of recommendation from their sponsor and a letter from a description of their interest in the outdoors. Students arrive on June 16 at Kings Gap for a day of orientation and team building sessions that allowed the youth to get to know each participant better and build trust among the group.

For more details on the ECO camp program, contact ECO Coordinator Jim Davis at Blue Knob State Park, 276-3576.

Auxiliary to sponsor bloodmobile

HOUTZDALE — President Hilda Hutcheson conducted the July meeting of the Houtzdale American Legion Auxiliary. She reported that she attended a memorial service for veterans at Philipsburg and she presided over the County Council meeting in Curwensville.

The auxiliary sold hot sausage and haluska, which was made and donated by three members, for the Houtzdale three-day celebration.

Birthday greetings were extended to Helen Kostyak, Norma Jean Berdine and Betty Reese.

The auxiliary is sponsoring a bloodmobile Aug. 28. Assignments will take place at the next meeting.

Within the past few weeks, all members received notices that 2003 dues are due, at a cost of $10.

Closing prayers were read by the chaplain and Carolyn Fudrow and Rose Weirick served refreshments.

The Aug. 20 meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the legion home.
