Judge Ammerman presides at July 27 session of Motions Court

Clearfield County President Judge Fredric J. Ammerman presided over Motions Court July 27.

Dexter Irving McLaughlin, 32, Clearfield County Jail, had a motion to reduce bail denied. He is charged with simple assault, terroristic threats, disorderly conduct and possession of a small amount of marijuana. At his preliminary hearing July 7, bail was set at $25,000 straight.

Jacob J.S. Woods, 21, CCJ, had a motion to reduce bail denied. He is charged with criminal conspiracy. At his June 4 preliminary hearing, bail was set at $25,000 straight.

James Richard Gillen, 43, State Correctional Institution at Chester, had a defense counsel petition to withdraw as counsel of record denied. The defendant's attorney, Peter Carley, was court appointed.

In August 2002, Mr. Gillen was ordered to serve two and a half years in state prison on charges of aggravated assault and robbery.

Mr. Carley asked the court if he should continue with his defense and file a motion under the Post Conviction Relief Act or if the Court was going to appoint other counsel. The Court indicated that Mr. Carley was familiar with the case and denied the petition.

Kenneth J. McFarland, 26, SCI-Cresson, had a defendant's PCRA petition dismissed without prejudice. The issue of time credit was resolved by the Department of Corrections, and the Court believed this would satisfy the motion. Mr. McFarland is serving a five month to two-year consecutive sentence on a DUI charge from November 2002.

David Lee Anthony, 20, and Steven W. Currie, 18, both of 17 Lincoln Drive, DuBois, had a defense counsel motion to withdraw appearance granted. The defendants are charged with aggravated assault, criminal conspiracy, terroristic threats, riot, ethnic intimidation, reckless endangering another person and false reports to law enforcement authorities.

Pets in Japan enjoy pampered lifestyle

Enthused by hit TV commercials for a loan company featuring a doe-eyed Chihuahua, Japanese last year bought more than 1.5 million dogs by industry count — mostly Chihuahuas, miniature dachshunds and other dogs small enough to fit into Japan's cramped homes.

Catering to the 11.1 million canines is a huge industry, estimated at more than $9 billion.

The fashion-conscious can walk their dogs with a Louis Vuitton leather leash and a neck cuff for a combined $540, or use a $1,730 carrying case.

For those leaving their pets behind during business trips, dog hotels and dog-sitters are readily available.

For gourmet dogs, Internet shopping sites offer heat-and-serve creamy pasta with Parmesan cheese, corn, green peas and pork, or orange-flavored herb chicken fillet. For dessert, dog bakeries prepare muffins and cookies, or a birthday cake topped with strawberries and cream.

Analysts say the boom reflects a changing attitude toward pets in the world's fastest-aging society where the birthrate is at its lowest-ever — 1.29 per woman.

entrance and live in tatami-mat rooms, it was long unthinkable for dogs to be kept inside. But that has changed as traditional Japanese homes have been replaced by Westernized townhouses with wooden floors.

Families have split into smaller units, with aging parents often living alone, and many Japanese have turned to dogs to fill their thinning family bonds, said Katsuo Mochizuki, with the Pet Food Manufacturers' Association of Japan.

"As we've gone through more than a decade of economic slump, facing social uncertainty and stressful city life, many Japanese have found dogs an answer to relieve stress and feel warmth at home," he said.

"Couples with grown-up children have also found dogs as a substitute."

Recent surveys suggest dogs are most often owned by people over 45.

More apartment blocks tolerate pets, some providing a wall-mounted panel for cats to flex their claws. More city parks have dog runs, and more open-air restaurants and cafes will serve a dog a bowl of water under its owner's table.

But although Japanese have never and at cleaning in after, those attend-

Pennsylvania: From sandy to rocky, a hiker's treasure chest

By Jason Straziuso
Associated Press Writer

GARDNERS (AP) — At 3,213 feet, Mount Davis in Somerset County lords over the wild rivers of southwest Pennsylvania. And as the state's highest point, it makes for one rewarding (and fairly easy) hike.

Ricketts Glen State Park, which stretches across three counties in northeastern Pennsylvania, boasts 22 waterfalls in one 7-mile stretch. Presque Isle State Park's sandy paths along Lake Erie lead past exotic birds. Cutting across the state, the Appalachian Trail invites users into a corridor of nature, where traffic jams, computers and the modern world's troubles are left behind.

Park planners put a state park within 25 miles of any point in Pennsylvania, according to John Young, author of "Hike Pennsylvania," making hiking an easy-to-get-to outdoor activity.

"Pennsylvania is an ideal hiking state. It's accessible, it's free," Young said. "All you need to hike in Pennsylvania is a good pair of shoes."

Pine Grove Furnace State Park, about 30 miles southwest of Harrisburg, marks the halfway point of the 2,174-mile Appalachian Trail. Thru-hikers (those who hike the entire trail from Spring Mountain, Ga., to Mount Katahdin, Maine) traditionally celebrate the halfway point by eating a half-gallon of ice cream from the park's general store.

C.B. Brown, 42, a carpenter from Basalt, Colo., reached Pine Grove four months after starting out on the trail in Georgia.

"I love it out here, you can't beat it," Brown said, motioning to the thick canopy of trees. "You can't see absolutely anything, and it's one of the prettiest spots you'll see."

Just up the trail from Brown's campsite, a post and trail book marks the halfway point. One hiker scribbled a note dated May 18, before the store opened for the season: "Disappointed in no ice cream at the 1/2 way. I trudged on another 1000 miles for a full gallon instead."

Far away from the Appalachian Trail's tree cover, Presque Isle offers a completely different hiking environment. The far eastern point of the peninsula is actually growing, as sand carried by waves and currents build up.

Instead of packed dirt or hard rock, the isle's hiking trails are on packed sand. Songbirds here come in a carnival of colors: deep purplish brown, bright red, vibrant yellow. Even wild turkeys can be seen walking among the small trees.

While researching his book "Hike Pennsylvania," Young took more than 50 hikes in the state. He called Presque Isle a "must-do," but says Ricketts Glen, about 70 miles northeast of Harrisburg, is his favorite.

A confluence of creeks running down the Allegheny Front

Trail make for almost two dozen waterfalls at Ricketts Glen. All that water makes for a cool ravine filled with big, leafy plants. The force of water also means the park is always changing; a waterfall moves back after its rocks crumble away, or a tree is downed across the foot path or creek.

"Ricketts Glen has more to offer than any other hike," Young, 58, said. "It's the most rewarding experience. It's almost spiritual."

Other hikes Young likes:

- Mount Minstl in Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area. The Appalachian Trail exits the state at this point, but before it does, Mount Minstl provides a great climb. "That's a memorable spot because you can get so high," Young said. "It's hard to get up there, too, so you're rewarded."

- The North Country Trail, part of a 4,000-mile, east-to-west trail that runs from North Dakota, through the Upper Peninsula of Michigan and ends in New York.

Adopting an '80s icon

NEW YORK (AP) — Signs of the early 1980s are everywhere: Some are welcome (designer jeans with high heels), some are not (leg warmers).

Is the time right to bring back another phenomenon, the Cabbage Patch Kid?

"We are in a unique period where the kids of 20 years ago are the parents of today."

"These parents are finding out what they loved as a kid is coming back, and they are now able to share that special experience with their children," says Jay Foreman, president of Play Along Inc., which will distribute the dolls beginning in August.

"Of all the hot trends from the '80s, Cabbage Patch was one of the biggest by far," he adds.

These "adoptable" dolls, each with its own look and personality and a desire to find a nurturing home, first caught the public's eye in 1981, and parents were soon buying and selling them for a profit. In 1983, the first year they were marketed by a large toy manufacturer, Coleco, 3 million Cabbage Patch Kids were sold, and parents were known to line up at toy stores at the crack of dawn with their fingers crossed as new shipments arrived.

Xavier Roberts, Cabbage Patch Kids creator, says he's pleased to offer the dolls to a new generation.

"Cabbage Patch Kids are designed to celebrate individuality and diversity. People of all ages and backgrounds recognize and appreciate the differences they see in each of our Cabbage Patch Kids," Roberts says.

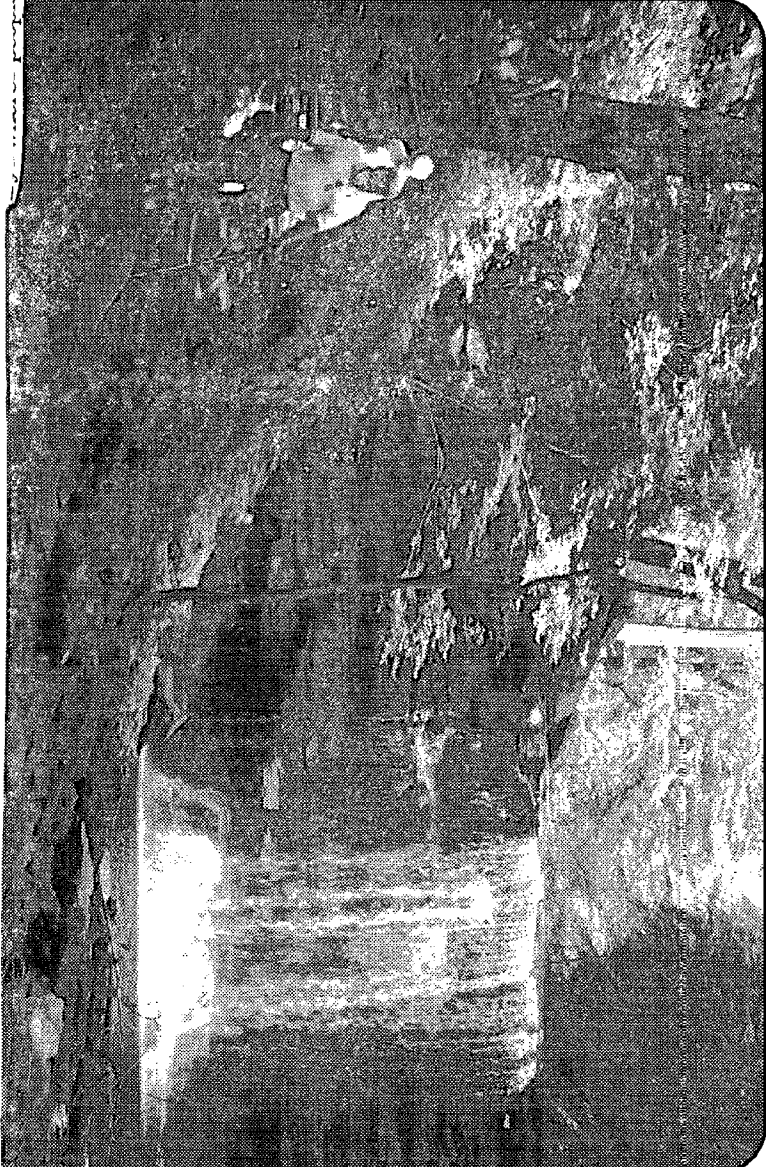

Foreman says that the baby-faced dolls will provide a good alternative to today's children who mostly play with electronic pets and computer mice.

"The basic essence of what the Cabbage Patch Kids captured 20 years ago is now more relevant than ever, as adopting and caring for a 'Kid' of their own is so basic, yet fresh, in a world where extreme video games have become the norm," Foreman says.

is a simple-yet-informative narrative to provide a cultural context to previous Olympics for its target audience of 10-year-old-and-up readers, many of whom are too young to remember even the 1996 Atlanta games.

The glimpses of athletic history include:

- The empty silver-medal platform from the 1972 Olympics. The U.S. basketball team did not attend the medal ceremony because it felt it should have been declared the winner of a contentious final game against the Soviet Union that was ultimately decided by a five-man jury that included three judges from Communist countries.
- Jackie Joyner-Kersey appearing to soar above the crowd at the long-jump event at the 1996 Olympics.
- Close to 100,000 people gathered in Athens in 1896, the first modern Olympic Games. Greece led all nations in medals with 46.
- Luz Long and Jesse Owens watching their long jump competitors in 1936. Long suggested to Owens that he draw his own starting line a foot before the real one in case he took off too early. Owens ended up with the gold. Long the silver.
- Eric Moussambani of Equatorial Guinea, who learned to swim only nine months earlier, alone in a qualifying heat during the 2000 Olympics in Sydney.
- Swimmer Mark Spitz holding five of the seven gold medals he would win at the 1972 Summer Games in Munich, West Germany.
- A masked terrorist on a balcony in the Olympic Village in Munich.

A good fit

NEW YORK (AP) — Back-to-school shopping is about to start in earnest, but while there might some intergenerational negotiations on color and cut, comfort should be an easy point for parents and children to agree on.

To find a properly fitting shoe, manufacturer Stride Rite suggests measuring both feet for length and width.

And since a young child often doesn't have the vocabulary — or the desire — to tell parents that their shoes are too tight, parents should recheck measurements periodically and give frequent "toe tests," pushing down on the toe box of shoes to make sure there is some room between the child's feet and the front.

Parents also should look for signs of discomfort when their children are putting their shoes on or when they walk, run or climb.

"Your 4-year-old may keep from you that her favorite pair of purple and pink sneakers are starting to hurt in fear that her new sneakers will not be as good, or even worse the store will be out of her favorite color combination," says a company statement.

For those youngsters who are attached to their old pair of shoes, parents can reassure them that something very similar in a more comfortable size is waiting for them at the store.

Join Spider-Man's party

NEW YORK (AP) — It seems as if Spider-Man is every child's favorite superhero these days, and pizza is one of the favorite party snacks.

In "Spider-Man Party Book" (Meredith), there's a recipe for Peter Parker's Pizza that brings the two together.

Ingredients:

Baked 12-inch pizza crust on pan

½ cup pizza sauce

3 ounces slice pepperoni

3 sticks of string mozzarella cheese

6 to 10 pitted ripe black olives

Grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

Instructions:

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Spread the pizza sauce evenly on the pizza crust.

Arrange pepperoni slices on sauce. Pull apart string cheese into skinny strings. Arrange cheese in a web pattern on pizza. Halve half of the olives and arrange on pizza as spider bodies.

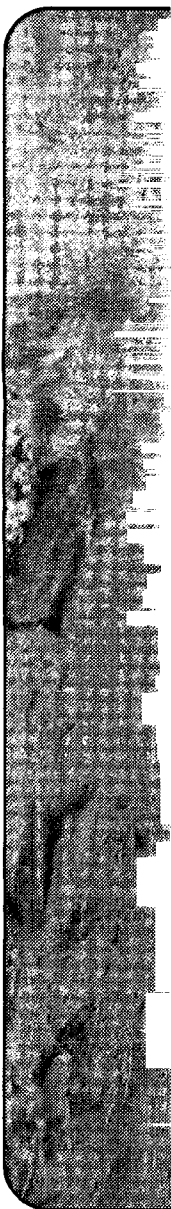

Cut remaining olives into narrow wedges. Place eight wedges around each spider body for the legs.

Bake for 8 to 10 minutes or until cheese begins to melt.

Dust with Parmesan cheese, if desired.

Serves 6.

"Spider-Man Party Book" also offers instructions for homemade spider-themed invitations, games and cakes.

Family secrets.

Book offers 100 ways to be a happy bunch

By Samantha Critchell
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no secret recipe for a happy family, but psychologist and social scientist David Niven says there are several — OK, 100 — ingredients that help create the framework for a harmonious household.

It's important for family members to listen to each other, avoid comparisons and to be punctual — all logical and fairly easy things to do, he says.

The goal is to create an atmosphere of good will and encourage mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, and even grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins to genuinely enjoy each other's company, not merely tolerate one another.

"We tend to underestimate the importance of everyday activities. A family is built around the mundane, not the highlights like a vacation when the dynamics change," says Niven.

Each of the entries in "The 100 Simple Secrets of Happy Families" (Harper San Francisco) are based on research conclusions of scientists studying family life, not personal experience of Niven or those near and dear to him, he explains. The tips that can be implemented as soon as tomorrow include:

• No. 39. Show up on time.

Punctual parents are the foundation of the consistency in children's lives. Kids won't think they are being left on their own without guidance and supervision, and they'll feel like they can depend upon their parents.

"Anyone could do this, but many don't," says Niven.

• No. 12. Tell your family story.

When parents talk about their upbringing and even their parents' upbringing, it gives the next generation a sense of the big family picture. They'll understand the relationships and not just see relatives as otherwise unrelated people who pose for a portrait on holidays.

Offering family context also helps humanize parents. "To a lot of children, their parents never had a childhood with childhood issues. They (children) think their parents were born in their 30s.

But if they knew about the fights their parents had over clothes when they were young then the kids will understand that the decision of when they can pierce their ears isn't being decided by some old fuddy duddy."

• No. 17. Live your views.

Showing what you value by doing it encourages the next generation to respect and follow. This method of teaching also allows children to make decisions for themselves, which likely will lead to decisions and convictions that stick.

However, ruling with an iron hand will only encourage rebellion.

"People who feel they were brought up in very restrictive households tend to feel like they are not in control of their own adult lives, mostly because don't feel know how to make a decision."

Other "secrets" offered by Niven might take longer to accomplish because they require some thought and planning.

"One of the most important aspects of family life is for everyone to be a family member and an individual. It can be a difficult balance," says Niven, who is taking a sabbatical from his teaching job at Florida Atlantic University to do research at Ohio State University.

Tip No. 88 is "Don't do everything together."

He compares families who love each other but spend too much time together to a vacation in an interesting, faraway land; it's great for a two-week visit but you probably don't want to move in permanently.

"Putting every moment available into your family is not a healthy thing. Just because it's important doesn't mean you should spend every moment possible on it. It'll eat away at your own identity."

He adds: "Spending all your efforts on your family will reduce family satisfaction because you'll begin to resent your family. Martyrs aren't happy people."

If it seems that your time is too heavily tilted toward other people's needs, Niven suggests writing down your thoughts (No. 6). Such reflection is healthy and it helps put life and your family's role in it in perspective — plus, he adds, the time you take to write it likely will be "alone" time.

It's not a bad idea for children, and especially teenagers, to keep a journal as well. Niven says, because it gives them an unadulterated outlet to express their thoughts.

That said, dialogue among family members is even more important and Niven advises holding a formal family discussion about family discussions.

Ground rules, such as "everyone has a voice" and "parents do have the final word," should be addressed at the onset, he says.

"Everybody needs to feel listened to. Not everyone needs to win, but they need to feel listened to," says Niven, preaching tip No. 40, "Communication brings us closer."

"Even though children might not like decision, they'll accept it if they feel like they were listened to. ... A family is more of a dictatorship than a democracy, just try to balance the needs of the people."

Those needs will be different for each family member, and — as secret No. 37 says — it's important for expectations to vary depending on the individual.

HONG KONG (AP) — William Hung, who shot to instant fame as a reject on the U.S. talent show "American Idol," has debuted in Asia at a Macau casino.

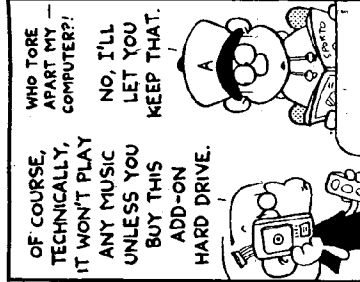

Accompanied by sexy dancers in red tube tops, the Hong Kong-born singer belted out his most famous hit — an off-key rendition of Ricky Martin's "She Bangs" — at Kam Pek casino in Macau, local media reported Sunday.

"I don't mind having some people ridicule me," Hung was quoted as saying in the South China Morning Post.

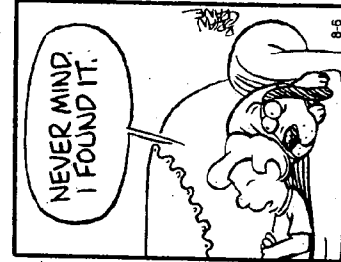

Hung, a 21-year-old civil engineering student at the University of California at Berkeley, became famous after he responded to the mockery of "American Idol" judges by saying that he had done his best and had no regrets.

He went on to sign a singing contract with Fuse Music Network and Koch Records.

Wanting to be wanted is wrong reason for romance

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend of more than one year and I broke up about a month ago. While the split was sudden, I understood his reasons for wanting to end the relationship, and we're still good friends.

Recently, a guy at work expressed an interest in me, and we have made out a few times. This guy is extremely forward, likes to move quickly, and has made it clear that his interest is only physical. I can't seem to find the willpower to tell him to leave me alone. I keep associating with him to fill the void that was left when my boyfriend and I parted ways. He is pushing more and more to see me alone, and I'm running out of excuses.

I know what I'm doing isn't right, but the feeling of being desired is something I don't want to lose again. Can you please help me sort out this mess?

TORN IN TWO

DEAR TORN: That little voice that's telling you what you're doing isn't right is your intuition. It is trying to steer you in the right direction. When an affair at the office ends, it can be painful and embarrassing to be confronted every day with the ghost of romance past, so take my advice and don't do it.

Tell the office Romeo to slow down, he's moving too fast. If he has any respect for you, he will back off.

DEAR ABBY: I love to bake, and I have heard for years that when baking or cooking with wine or liquor, the alcohol burns off.

I have a cupcake recipe that contains one-half cup of coffee liqueur and yields 30 cupcakes. They were baked at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

One of my co-workers, after having one cupcake, told everyone that she was sure the cupcake had made her drunk. She even had slurred speech! She did not appear to be joking, and continued talking about it for several days afterward.

Is it possible?

THE NEW OFFICE BARTENDER,
QUINCY, CALIF.

DEAR BARTENDER: Yes, it is. I posed your question to Sherry Yard, pastry chef at Spago in Beverly Hills. Sherry told me that when the liqueur is put directly into the batter, not all of it burns off, which means people with a sensitivity to alcohol should not eat those cupcakes.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I adopted two daughters from China. They are now 3 and 4 years old. Time and again people ask if the girls are "real sisters."

My daughters are proud to be Chinese, and they know each other only as sisters. In time, they will understand the circumstances surrounding their birth. An adopted child from China has no means of finding any history about his/her birth parents.

What do you recommend answering when we're asked if the girls are "real sisters?"

LUCKY MOM
IN MICHIGAN

DEAR LUCKY MOM: There seems to be no limit to the questions people feel entitled to ask when they see families who are multiracial. Your daughters became "real sisters" the minute you adopted them, and I see no reason why you should tell anyone otherwise.

PUT MOSS IN JEOPARDY
Dear Heloise: I recently heard one of your hints as a question on "Jeopardy!" but I did not get the details. Please explain the mixture to eliminate moss from between bricks on patios. Thank you very much. — W.D. from Kentucky

Isn't it great? Occasionally, I am a category on "Jeopardy!" — I love it! Now to your question: Moss can be removed from patio bricks by using a mixture of 3/4 cup bleach to 1 gallon water. Pour onto the bricks and let the solution sit for five to 10 minutes. Rinse well and let air-dry. As with all cleaning products, test on a brick first to be sure that it won't cause any discoloration. When the moss has died and dried, sweep it away. That's all there is to it! — Heloise

SEND A GREAT HINT TO:

DEP approves plan to correct I-99 acid rock drainage

WILLIAMSPORT — The Department of Environmental Protection has approved, with modifications, the state Department of Transportation's plan to correct environmental violations involving acid rock drainage in the Skytop area of Centre County, DEP Regional Director Robert Yowell announced Monday.

"DEP has approved PennDOT's plan to correct acid rock drainage violations at the I-99 construction site.

"The violations were noted in our July 20 letter," Yowell said. "We will continue to work closely with our sister agency and the other I-99 partners as we progress to a permanent solution."

In its approval letter, DEP: • agrees with PennDOT's plan to redirect surface water from the Skytop fill area that is currently sent to Pond M into Sedimentation Basin No. 1.

• directs PennDOT to relocate the unnamed tributary below the Seibert fill area around the existing stream channel to a culvert pipe, and to construct the additional treatment basin as proposed to minimize acidic drainage to the unnamed tributary.

• approves PennDOT's proposal to use the 2A crushed stone pile to achieve proper grading and contouring on all acid rock disposal areas after it has been mixed with lime at a rate of 1,100 pounds per cubic yard.

• approves two of PennDOT's interim sealing/capping choices for all existing fill areas containing acidic rock, shotcrete and geosynthetic liners.

DEP also suggests another possibility of using a 30-millimeter PVC liner.

• requests that PennDOT provide additional details regarding control of increased stormwater runoff once the sealing/capping is completed.

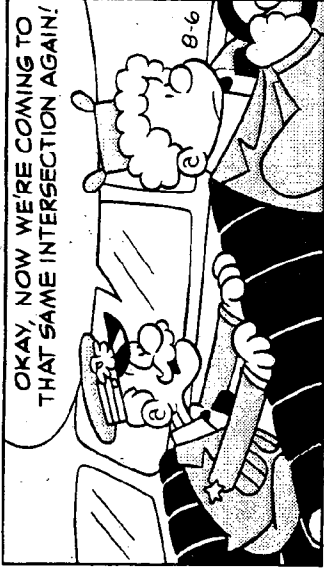

• reminds PennDOT that it must eventually restore the headwaters and headwater tributaries to Buffalo Run to a pre-construction condition.

• requests a timetable for each of the proposed activities, including priorities for contouring, capping and sealing each of the fill areas containing acidic rock.

1. Two notrump. A jump to two notrump is the best way to describe your values. It indicates 18 or 19 high-card points, notrump distribution and at least one stopper in each of the opponents' suits.

However, the best final contract is still uncertain. Partner might go along with notrump, or he might have a hand that he thinks is better for suit play. You will follow whatever he leads, since your values are flexible enough to fit any hand partner he might have.

2. Six spades. Taking into account your extra values, partner's jump to three spades and your excellent support for his suit, there should be no doubt about making 12 tricks. The only real question is whether a grand slam can be made.

If you start by assuming that partner has six spades to the A-K and the ace of clubs, you are already on the verge of a grand slam. Any other feature North might have, such as the queen of hearts or king of diamonds, is almost sure to yield 13 tricks. However, it's far from certain that North has the A-K of spades and ace of clubs, so the simplest thing to do is to jump to six spades and hope North has the values to carry on to a grand slam.

This is not the right type of hand for Blackwood. Learning that partner has two aces and either one or two kings would not settle the issue of whether there's a grand slam in the cards.

3. Four spades. Simplest is best. The probability of making 10 tricks at spades is overwhelming, and you should make sure of getting there without running the risk of being dropped at a less-than-gamut contract. There is a difference of opinion among players as to whether a jump to three spades in this situation — opposite partner's overall — is forcing or merely invitational. Regardless of which school you come from, you should go directly to four spades in the present case rather than risk a partnership misunderstanding.

Dear Heloise: I have a great use for an outdoor trash bag. I use it to protect my charcoal from getting wet during rain by placing the bag of charcoal inside the trash bag, drawing it closed and folding it over. This allows me to keep my charcoal outside on my patio next to my pit, where it's easy to access. — Travis C. Katy, Texas

They keep the bin from sliding around, and you can still remove the bin at any time to clean it. They're great for putting under place mats on tables or counters, too. — Michelle in California

OLD MOUSE PADS

Dear Heloise: Just wanted to share that old mouse pads make great coasters! Just flip 'em over, and they stop iced drinks from forming nasty rings on furniture.

They cut easily, and since they are a solid black on the back, you can just cut them into squares or circles. I have one on my cherry oak desk at work — it works like a charm. — K. Troy, Orangeburg, S.C.

Coal refuse piles to be reclaimed

DYSART — At a recent meeting, members of the Clearfield Creek Watershed Association heard that several piles of coal refuse on state Gameland No. 108 near Dean will be reclaimed, and a large flow of acid will be directed down a limestone channel to neutralize acidity.

The work will be performed by E.P. Bender Coal Co. as part of a coal lease near Coalport.

The flow of acid from this abandoned coal mine was sampled by watershed association members as part of a recent assessment of Clearfield Creek and is among the acid sources prioritized for treatment in the assessment.

Members will clean up eight miles of state Route 53 Sunday. Members and volunteers will meet at the Laurel Run Sportsman's Club at 9 a.m.

Couple's relationship is going wrong direction

Help me
Harlan
Harlan
Cohen

Dear Harlan,
I'm a 23-year-old woman who is engaged. I was going for seven months for Army training and have been home for five months. I moved in with my fiancé upon returning home. Things were not going great at first. He would get into heated arguments about trivial things, like doing for a couple of months, things were going great. Recently, I've been feeling a little bored with our relationship. I've requested that we ride bikes, go for a walk, go camping or go to the zoo. He always says no. Yesterday, I voiced how I felt. He said I was having a "hissy fit." We argued in circles for what seemed like an eternity. He feels that I'm taking my frustrations out on him and that I'm never happy with him. He also feels that he has changed himself for me. Now, he doesn't like who he is. He is also having second thoughts. I still want to be with him, but I feel really bad that he feels like he has had to change for me. I feel that it is my fault that he doesn't like himself anymore. How can I fix this? Or can I even fix it?

placement, but you have to dig deep to find these programs. Please tell him/her to start with the state assistance offices, then go online and contact The United Way. Whenever he/she runs into a dead end, ask the person at the dead end who else to call. It might take 100 calls to get what is needed, but the programs are out there! My best wishes!

Been There

Dear Been There,
All great suggestions, especially the part about never giving up. On average, I'd say nine out of 10 people are kind and helpful. The problem is that one miserable lump is sometimes the first point of contact on the phone or in person. For those who face that miserable moron the first time around, don't stop. There are good people waiting to help.

Regarding your suggestion about The United Way, this is an awesome resource that includes approximately 1,400 community-based organizations addressing a wide range of needs. "Struggling" can visit its Web site at www.unitedway.org to inquire about local resources. For those without online access, the Internet is accessible at most public libraries. If you're unfamiliar with how to use it, just ask a librarian (nine out of 10 will be more than happy to assist you).

HBO producing series on polygamous family

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Think Tony Soprano, but without all the violence or swearing — and with a wife who doesn't care if he sleeps with other women.

That's the star of HBO's new original drama series, the Tom Hanks-produced "Big Love," about a polygamous, fictional Utah family living in the present day.

After viewing a pilot, the cable channel announced this week it had green-lit the production of 10 episodes, starring Bill Paxton and Chloë Sevigny.

HBO has won critical acclaim with original series like "The Sopranos," "Sex and the City"

Aug. 7, 2004

You could find yourself making considerable changes in your modus operandi in the year ahead, with your objectives getting altered as well. These shifts will make a difference in bringing you greater success.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - Nothing very fruitful for you is likely to result today if you permit others to direct you in situations where you should be leading them. Don't be hoodwinked into abdicating command.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - If you haven't been earnestly working on attempting to weed out unproductive habits you may possess, today's events could force you to take a long hard look at yourself. Hope you like it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) - Don't bank your hopes too high on the expectations of your friends today. Everybody has feet of clay and things can happen which are beyond your control, so give them the benefit of the doubt.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) - Although we all should be image-conscious at all times when out in public, if your involvements place you before the public today be sure to take extra pains to put on a good face.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) - Your wonderful memory could prove to be an unreliable ally today, so don't depend too heavily on it. When something important is at stake, make a list or take notes to refer to later.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Joint ventures entered into impulsively today might turn out to be just as thoughtless as the action. Be sure your counterparts have assets that would compliment one another.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) - When we want something badly enough we can kid our selves into believing everything is fine. This could be true of you today when committing yourself to an agreement. Check out the details.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) - Put forth your best effort at work, but what is just as important is taking steps to protect what you do so that a co-worker can't try to take credit for your accomplishment. Someone may try today.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Your expectations of what is prestigious and important are greatly exaggerated in your own mind. Be realistic about life and you won't be disappointed. Happiness is an inside job.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Displays of temperament or moodiness will cast a shadow over your entire environment today and have you wearing a long face. Nothing is either good or bad, but thinking makes it so.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) - There is a possibility that there could be a brief delay today regarding some plans you made and are relying on. Don't try to plow ahead before they're confirmed or things won't work out.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) - Unscrupulous people are always around and today will be no exception.

Aug. 8, 2004

In the year ahead, you will get ample opportunities to climb the ladder of success. Provided you keep your nose to the grindstone and associate with those who are equally as diligent, you could go further than you thought.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) - In matters that could affect your reputation, status or standing in the eyes of others, keep your temper in check today. You could lose more than a moment of control.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) - By not bringing what's bothering you out into the open today you are likely to become more and more incensed with bottled-up emotion and erupt at a most inappropriate time. Talk things out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) - Friends will appreciate you more today if you are your usual self and cooperate with the desires of the majority. Don't attempt to assert yourself when everyone clearly wants something else.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) - Should something go wrong in your dealings with friends today, try to find humor in the situation instead of popping off with indignation, even if you are the person who is in the right.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) - Play up to those who are working at your side rather than lord over them with your know-how. If you're a bore, they may desert you and let you fend for yourself.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) - Someone you're hanging out with today could be a bit too loose with his or her money and make you feel cheap if you don't keep up with the spending spree. Be smart and go your own way.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) - You could find yourself in one of your moods today and let everything and everybody bother you, and cause frustration. It's your problem; don't take things out on your mate or family.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) - Carelessness could plague you today, so when working with unfamiliar tools or materials, be particularly safety-conscious. If you can't handle things with care, get someone else who can.

Aries (March 21-April 19) - Your sense of what is of material value might not be up to the usual high standards today, and this could cause you to purchase worthless items or pay more for something than it's actually worth.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) - Even if you feel time breathing down on your neck today when working on a home project you need to get finished, keep a cool head or you'll make more work for yourself instead.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) - There's a possibility today that you might find yourself squeezed into a corner of your own making. Pointing the finger of blame at another will not help, and might add to your troubles.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) - This is not a day to act careless with your prized possessions.

FOX TROT by Bill Amend

OK, THAT MIGHT BE AND BEST OF ALL, IT'S WORTH PAYING FOR. — I — ANY BOY-BAND MUSIC.

TWO SCROLL WHEELS IN-STEAD OF ONE! TEN BUTTONS INSTEAD OF FIVE! AND IT RUNS ON AC, SO THERE ARE NO BATTERIES TO GO DEAD!

PRESENTING "THE J-POD": BETTER THAN AN IPOD IN EVERY WAY!

OF COURSE, TECHNICALLY, IT WON'T PLAY ANY MUSIC UNLESS YOU BUY THIS ADD-ON HARD DRIVE.

WHO TORE APART MY COMPUTER? NO, I'LL LET YOU KEEP THAT.

Slow play can be a headache, but the recent attempt by the LPGA (women's pro golf) to control it cannot be right. A player put "on the clock" was given 30 seconds per shot for the next hole. On a par three, she hit a fair tee shot and rolled in a long putt for a birdie two. However, since she had taken more than 60 seconds over her shots, she was assessed a two-shot penalty: four on the scorecard. If she had just missed her putt, she would have scored three, but would have taken fewer than 90 seconds and not been penalized. Absurd!

In bridge, taking one's time is usually beneficial. Here, you are South, the declarer in four hearts. How would you slowly plan the play after West leads the spade king?

Maybe South should respond one heart, but four hearts isn't silly, because that rates to be the best contract and might make West's life harder.

If you win trick one and drive out the heart ace, East will return the club jack, stranding you in the dummy. You can exit with a spade, but West will win the trick and give his partner a club ruff. The diamond ace will be the fourth defensive winner.
